DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over USPN 6,355,401 to Graves et al in view of either USPN 5,421,955 to Lau et al or in view of USPN 5,902,475 to Trozera et al. Graves et al describe selective coating removal methods comprising the use of a laser and comprising the workpiece such as a stent (column 6, first paragraph). Graves does not describe rotating during ablation. Both Lau et al and Trozera et al describe rotation of the work during stent coating removal. The use of a rotating mandrel for supporting the stent during laser ablation would have been obvious at the time applicant's invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art because the rotation will improve work manipulation and will improve work speed. The choice of a suitable amount of light energy for ablation is inherent in Graves. The use of a controller for workpiece and tool control is well known in the art and is shown, for example, by Lau et al (Front Page). With respect to the instant claimed dimensions or shapes of removed coating material, finishing the workpiece to prescribed dimensions or shapes would have been obvious at the time applicant's invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art because the design dimensions are known and because the laser tooling is easily controllable for highly accurate material removal. With respect to the apparatus claims which comprise method and/or workpiece limitations, neither the intended use of an apparatus nor the workpiece used in an apparatus impart patentability to the apparatus structure.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The cited art pertains to stent manufacture and lasers.
